

Contents

I.	Introduction	2
II.	Conceptualising conflict and peace: implications for peacebuilding	4
II.1.	Conceptualising conflict and peace	4
II.2.	Implications for peacebuilding	6
II.3.	Conclusion	7
III.	Women, gender and conflict	8
III.1.	Introduction	8
III.2.	Women and war	8
III.2a.	Conclusion	12
III.3.	Gender and conflict	13
III.3a.	Conclusion	16
IV.	Women, gender and peacebuilding	18
IV.1.	Introduction	18
IV.2.	Working with women as peacemakers	18
IV.2a.	Women's Organisations for Peace	18
IV.2b.	Increasing the Presence of Individual Women in Peace Processes	21
IV.2c.	Changing the Culture of Organisations and Institutions	22
IV.3.	Mainstreaming gender into policies	23
IV.3a.	Truth Processes and National Reconciliation	24
IV.3b.	Changing Political Structures and Culture	25
IV.3c.	Economic Rehabilitation	26
IV.4.	Working with men to change masculinity	28
V.	Recommended future policy directions	30
V.1.	The policy context	30
V.2.	Key recommended policy objectives	31
V.3.	Specific policy recommendations	31
V.3a.	Policies to Avoid a Gender-Insensitive Peace	32
V.3b.	Working with Women as Change Agents in Society	33
V.3c.	Working with Men as Change Agents in Society	34
VI.	Endnotes	36
VII.	Selected bibliography	40